Have SHELTERS become the new low-income housing?

Shapiro Succeeds Stein
at Citymeals-on-Wheels

Marcia Stein, the long-serving Founding Executive Director of Citymeals-on-Wheels, has announced that she is stepping down from the non-profit organization she helped create in 1981. Beth Shapiro, the agency's Associate Executive Director, will serve as the charity's new chief.

With one brief three-year respite, Stein has been at the helm of Citymeals since it was founded 30 years ago by preeminent restaurant critic and author Gael Greene and renowned chef and cooking teacher James Beard. Over the past three decades, Citymeals has provided nearly 45 million nutritious hand-delivered meals, as well as comfort and companionship, to tens of thousands of homebound, frail elderly New Yorkers.

"Under Marcia's stewardship, Citymeals expanded from a $35,000 program to a well-respected $18 million non-profit organization that provides food and companionship to homebound elderly New Yorkers," said Mayor Michael Bloomberg. "This unique partnership is an incredible resource for so many, and we have Marcia's inspirational leadership to thank for helping to bring more than two million nutritious meals to seniors each year in our City. I wish her well as she embarks on the next chapter of her life."

"For thirty years it has been Marcia's fierce passion and intelligence, sage political instincts, and her persuasive credibility marshalling our volunteer forces that have given Citymeals its strength, morality and a unique charisma," said Greene. "Fueling her zeal is her deeply-held belief that we owe the city's frail needy elderly the chance to live out their years in their homes, a commitment we honor as if they were our own parents and grandparents."

Stein will remain actively involved at Citymeals and will serve as a member of the board of directors. In September, she will join Columbia's School of International and Public Affairs and teach a course on non-profit management.

An experienced marketing strategist, Shapiro is credited with establishing, maintaining and growing partnerships with major corporate partners including Alcoa, American Express, Con Edison, Nespresso, Toyota, MasterCard, D'Agostino's, Saks Fifth Avenue and others. In her almost six years at Citymeals, she has managed all public relations, advertising, online activities, fundraising and Board relations. Prior positions include service as vice president of account services at The Guild Group, a fully integrated marketing and communications agency in White Plains.

A native of Charlotte, North Carolina, Shapiro came to New York to begin her career at Ogilvy & Mather.

"In her years at Citymeals, Beth has demonstrated a keen ability to lead, sharp insights into good business practices, and great media instincts," said Greene. "With each passing year, she has taken on vastly increased responsibilities. She brings to her new post a fresh vision and ideas for keeping Citymeals vibrant and committed. She honors our legacy and will assist and incite our increasingly activist board to create their own."

Food Bank for Westchester Announces $750K Lanza Challenge Grant

Food Bank for Westchester has received a $750,000 Challenge Grant from philanthropist Pat Lanza of Eastchester that will help the organization move into a new and larger facility.

After years of searching, the Food Bank for Westchester has finally found and signed a long-term lease on a new home -- a 36,668-sq.-ft. office-warehouse space in Elmsford. Moving to the larger facility will enable the Food Bank to nearly triple its food acquisition and distribution capacity now and well into the future. The estimate for renovating and equipping the new space is $2.2 million. Because the Food Bank has $700,000 in reserve from a previous campaign, the current fundraising goal is $1.5 million. The $750,000 Lanza Challenge Grant means that every dollar contributed to the campaign will be matched by Mrs. Lanza, in effect doubling the donation. The campaign will remain in effect until January 1, 2012.

Demands for emergency food have climbed steadily in Westchester County, particularly during the past five years, and the Food Bank's 13,000 sq. ft. Millwood warehouse has become increasingly inadequate. According to Feeding America's 2011 Map the Meal Gap analysis, Food Bank for Westchester is far from meeting the needs of our hungry neighbors. Based on the 2009 U.S. Census, more than 95,320 Westchester residents are not sure where they will get their next meal. In 2010, the Food Bank for Westchester was able to distribute 7.1 million pounds of food, leaving a staggering deficit of more than 13.5 million pounds or 10.4 million meals. The increased capacity of the new warehouse will enable Food Bank to close the Meal Gap by nearly 83 percent.

Legal Services of Hudson Valley Gets $65 K Grant

Legal Services of the Hudson Valley (LSHV), the nonprofit law firm, has received a $65,000 grant from the Westchester Community Foundation to support the work of an attorney who will handle public benefits cases and ancillary housing matters from the White Plains office. The attorney will work to obtain or retain income and benefits including unemployment insurance and health care benefits to feed, clothe and sustain low-income families.

"Westchester Community Foundation has been a supportive partner to Legal Services of the Hudson Valley for seven years. We are so grateful for their shared commitment to our mission of improving the lives of the underserved in Westchester." said Barbara Finkelstein, LSHV Executive Director. "Together our two organizations are making positive and real changes in the lives of county residents. The current economic downturn makes our work more important than ever."

Established in 1967, Legal Services of the Hudson Valley provides free, civil legal services to low-income and newly unemployed people in Westchester and six neighboring New York counties.
